

Waterloo Economic Mobility Hub Fund

About the Waterloo Economic Mobility Hub

The Waterloo Economic Mobility Hub (WEMH) is a collaboration of public/private stakeholders and non-profit organizations with an aligned vision of fostering a holistic economic ecosystem for wealth building. The vision is to serve as a hub of equity and access, particularly for communities who have historically received limited resources and economic investment. This new community resource center will be located in the former Wells Fargo Bank, in downtown Waterloo.

The WEMH vision is to:

- Increase the number of Black and minoritized homeowners and businesses to assist with building generational wealth and decreasing disparity.
- Create pathways for people of color, youth, unemployed and underemployed neighbors to establish a positive sense of future by accessing good jobs that provide economic security and opportunities for career growth.
- Provide personal, professional and career coaching and financial mentorship to identify strengths and weaknesses, assist with setting goals, and create plans to achieve them.
- Current collaboration partners include the Job Foundation, ONE Cedar Valley, the Bank of Jabez, and Iowa Legal Aid.
